Government licensing laws can make it harder for people with low-incomes to find work. People with low-incomes may also find it hard to afford the months or even years of education needed to receive a license, even though on-the-job training could teach the same thing or more. Would you support or oppose allowing individuals to receive licenses to work if they have comparable on-the-job training through an apprenticeship, even if they haven't taken formal classes?

Government licensing laws can make it harder for those with criminal records of any kind to find work, even if their offenses occurred years ago and were non-violent. Would you support or oppose allowing individuals with prior involvement in the criminal justice system to apply for these licenses, so long as their offenses were non-violent and non-sexual, the conviction was more than five years ago, and the individual hasn't committed any crimes since?

Many businesses rely on contractors instead of standard employees. These contractors often have multiple clients and work from home or travel to multiple job sites. However, many states' laws make it difficult for businesses that use contract labor. Do you support or oppose updating state laws to match federal standards, making it easier for companies to hire contract employees?

Health insurance plans are subject to many regulations and mandates that drive up premiums. Temporary insurance policies are not subject to all of these regulations and can be purchased at significantly cheaper prices. However, many states do not allow these plans to be sold for durations longer than three months. Would you support or oppose allowing consumers to buy temporary plans that last up to a year and are renewable for up to three years?

Some small businesses pool their resources together to create health insurance plans for their employees. These association health plans are often cheaper than what a small business could buy on its own. Would you support or oppose loosening restrictions on association health plans to make it easier for businesses to pool their resources together to create lower-cost health insurance plans for their employees?

Results for this poll are based on automated telephone interviews conducted among a statewide sample of 504 likely voters in Tennessee. Data for this survey research was collected by Cor Strategies Inc. The surveys were conducted September 13-15, 2018.

The margin of sampling error is plus or minus 4.36 percentage points. The margin of sampling error may be higher for certain subgroups. Results presented may not always appear to total 100 percent due to rounding.

Data was sampled using weighted demographic information from state election authorities. Demographic information for actual voters in past elections were used to construct sample target weights.

Opportunity Solutions Project paid for all costs associated with this survey.
